

High School Concert.

Three one-act plays will be the feature of the concert which is being given by the High School in the opera house this Friday night and in themselves make a splendid entertainment. In addition, however, there will be choruses by 40 voices and the popular school orchestra will give a number of selections.

Programs are being printed and will be delivered around town on Friday. When you get the program you will see that the entertainment will be worth while attending.

At the Movies.

Two excellent pictures are showing at the movies this week.

"Steamboat Round the Bend," showing tonight (Thursday), is one of the best pictures made by the late Will Rogers. The racing river boats give you a thrill and in his wise cracking and comedy Rogers is at his best.

Saturday night Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler in "Shipmates Forever" bring one of the best singing and dancing features of the screen. Dick and Ruby and Uncle Sam's whole regiment of midshipmen in the story of the "Moral Engagement" almost wrecked Annapolis. You'll laugh till you're red, white and blue in the face when this Broadway songbird tries to shanghai the sweet heart of the academy!

Successful Concert.

The concert sponsored by the Ladies' Aids of Westcott, Westerdale and Knox United Churches at the Opera House on Friday night was a decided success. Rev J. R. Geeson acted as chairman.

The Westcott Quartette gave their usual pleasing performance. Mr. Jack Robertson and Mr. Hogg each rendered solos. Miss Hazel Rae, with her recitations, and her pupils in the Minuet, were very delightful.

The Minstrel Show, under the very able direction of Mrs. Ranton, proved a diversion by way of entertainment, taking the form of a radio broadcast, with Mr. Ernest Clarke, in tuxedo, as announcer. Solos and choruses were rendered. The "Gingham Girls," with their sunbonnets, made a pretty picture, while the colored end-men tossed the usual jokes.

From a financial standpoint it was a most successful venture and the committee wish to take this opportunity to thank the public for their very generous patronage.—Contributed.

To Equalize 1930 Pool Payment

The present federal government has decided, like the former government, that the Pool farmers who turned over their grain to the 1930 Pool and who received less than 60c a bushel, are entitled to that amount in view of the contribution their grain made towards the price stabilization operations. Prime Minister King announced that legislation would be enacted providing for the payment of the sum required to effect the stabilization.

Reeve Flinn Re-Elected.

Reeve Flinn was re-elected by the narrow margin of two votes in the election for Division 6 of Mountain View Municipality held Saturday. There was only a small vote polled, the results being: Flinn 67 and Jonah Hiller 65.

Mr. Flinn has served on the council for 21 years, being first elected in 1915. He has held the position of Reeve for several years.

C.G.I.T. "Coming-of-Age."

During the month of February Canadian Girls In Training celebrated the 21st birthday of the inauguration of the movement. In honor of the occasion Didsbury C.G.I.T. groups held a service on Sunday, February 23 in the Knox United Church.

The service opened with a procession, in which fifty C.G.I.T. girls from Didsbury, Olds and Carstairs marched into the church singing "Follow the Glean." The theme for the evening was, "On the Highway." During the service letters of congratulation were read from former Didsbury C.G.I.T. leaders, viz: Mrs. B. Church (nee Alexa Black), of Balzac; Mrs. J. Clark (nee Annie Johnson), of Nova Scotia, and Miss Ena Jagoe, of Calgary.

The speaker of the evening was Miss L. Carscadden, of Olds, who pointed out the need of C.G.I.T. to every 'teen age girl.

Others taking part in the service were Tillie Schwesinger, Betty Cummings, Lois Edwards, Helen Matthews and Alice Tighe. Rev. J. R. Geeson offered the prayer and delivered the Benediction. The C.G.I.T. choir sang special numbers, which were greatly enjoyed.

If a movement like C.G.I.T. has reached such heights as a coming-of-age—is it not worth the support of Didsbury citizens?

The Farm Problem For 1936

At this time of the year farm owners, farm operators and others interested in agricultural production are necessarily giving a great deal of thought and attention to the all-important problem of what to raise and how much to produce during the 1936 season.

Time was when this problem, if it was a problem at all, was a comparatively simple one. All that was necessary to do was to divide the land already prepared and the additional acreage to be prepared in the spring into two portions, one area to be seeded to wheat and the other to oats, with some provision for a small plot for vegetables for household use. In those days there were one or two standard varieties of wheat and oats and all the farmer had to plan in advance was which of these he would seed, and when the spring came to go ahead and seed it. Having done this, his chances of reaping a fair crop yielding him a reasonable return for his labor were pretty good.

But those days are gone and probably gone forever. Down the corridor of the past two decades, the problem of what to raise and how much of it has become more complex with each succeeding year, and to-day the question bristles with so many complications and ramifications as to require the wisdom of a Solomon and the acumen of the proverbial Philadelphia lawyer, plus the insight of a skillful prognosticator if a reasonably satisfactory answer is to be the outcome.

If the farm operator in the prairie provinces wants to eliminate the gamble from his coming season's activities, he must not only be an experienced tiller of the soil and husbandman, but he also needs to be a student, a scientist, an economist and a meteorological expert. In other words he must achieve the unattainable.

When preparing his plans for the year's work the farmer not only has to take into consideration the condition of his land, the state of its suitability and preparedness for various types of crops, the probable availability of the kind of seed he would like to sow, the nature and extent of the hazard to which various crops and varieties may be subjected to deterioration and loss by insect pests and diseases, the probable effect of prospective weather conditions on those crops, the availability of nutriment in the soil required by different types of crops, the probable demand for the resultant yield in the local and world markets but many other factors which, for lack of space, must be dismissed in the auctioneer's phrase "too numerous to mention".

Many of these questions the farmer, because of his own circumstances and local conditions must decide for himself with very little assistance from outside sources, but fortunately there is aid available for him in his efforts to weigh probabilities and prospects of the effect of market trends, market conditions, national policies and to some extent even of international situations and relations on his intended activities, but even the information available on these factors can only be a guide, subject as they are and more particularly in recent years, to great and rapid fluxes.

One of the most valuable of these guides, entitled "The Agricultural Situation and Outlook, 1936" has just been issued by the Dominion department of agriculture with the co-operation of the department of trade and commerce. The information it contains is compiled by the sub-committee on the agricultural outlook of the National Advisory Committee on Agricultural Services.

The government pamphlet contains a careful and concise survey of agricultural conditions as they existed in Canada in 1935, together with industrial conditions as they affected agriculture, beneficially and adversely, and the prospective position of agriculture for 1936, including some specific conclusions which cannot fail to be of material aid to every farmer who reads it.

As the foreword to this 52-page bulletin says: "This annual review of the position of Canadian agriculture contains basic information which will assist farmers in planning their business operations in 1936. It is, of course, impossible to take into consideration drastic changes in international affairs which might develop before the close of the year. The report, however, presents an analysis of the factors most likely to affect farm income in the coming year."

A particularly valuable feature of the report is the summarized conclusions published by the sub-committee with respect to each of the important cereal grains and the several divisions of livestock, together with the reasons which lead up to these conclusions.

One who reads the bulletin cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that, generally speaking, the position of agriculture has shown improvement in the past year and that the factors in support of further improvement in 1936 are material, but it should be pointed out that the farmer who is carefully and intelligently studying the situation is the farmer who is in the best position to take advantage of this prospective continuing upward trend.

The pamphlet should be in the hands of every farmer in the prairie provinces and is worthy of study by all who are interested in the welfare of agriculture in the west and that means every citizen of the three provinces.

Passengers On S.S. Queen Mary Will Enjoy Perfumed Air

Anyone who has crossed to North America in an ordinary common or garden steamship when the Atlantic was in one of its tantrums will be amused or shocked, according to temperament, by the accounts of what is to be done for the comfort of passengers in the Queen Mary.

Perfumed air will be available for the ladies, who can also, by a flick of the controlling lever, rid their rooms of cigarette smoke. . . The air in the cinemas and kitchens will be purified every three minutes, while in the 25 public rooms the atmosphere will be continually changed.

This serves to mark the tremendous change that has taken place since the coming of the "luxury liners" on the Atlantic ferry.

What early cross-Atlantic travel was like may be gathered from Charles Dickens' accounts of his first trip to the United States. That was in 1842, and the vessel was an early Cunarder, the Britannia, a three-masted one-funnel paddle steamer of 1,500 tons burthen.

The Britannia had a rough voyage, and Dickens, in a passage of a letter to John Forster, which was suppressed from "American Notes", says: "I have never been in the salon since the first day, the noise, the smell, and the closeness being quite intolerable." That was written six days out from Liverpool.

In the "Notes" the novelist says: "It was not exactly comfortable below. It was decidedly close, and it was impossible to be unconscious of the presence of that extraordinary compound of strange smells, which is to be found nowhere else but on board ship, and which is such a subtle perfume that it seems to enter at every pore of the skin, and whisper of the hold."

Rather different, this, from the no doubt still "subtle" but more identifiable perfumes the Queen Mary's passengers are to enjoy.—Manchester Guardian.

SELECTED RECIPES

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

1½ cup basic sponge
¼ cup milk
¼ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
3 apples (approx.)
Cinnamon

Add beaten egg to creamed butter and sugar. Add this with milk to 1½ cups sponge and make up into soft dough with flour and salt. Knead lightly and place in well greased bowl in warm location until double in bulk (about 1½ hours). Roll out ½-inch thick on board—cover bottom and sides of round shallow cake tin with the dough. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with sugar.

Cut apples in sixteenths and press into dough standing on edge in circular rows. Sprinkle with cinnamon and place a few pieces of butter on top of apples. Cover and let rise for ½ hour then bake, with temperature about 350 degrees F.

This recipe makes two Dutch Apple Cakes.

The Vimy Pilgrimage

Some Employees Granted Leave Of Absence With Pay

One event presently warming the hearts of transportation executives is the Pilgrimage to Vimy organized by the Canadian Legion for July, 1936. Some 5,000 are expected to participate, and the mission in France will conclude with the unveiling of the Canadian War Memorial on July 26. Many have already shown their desire to co-operate with the boys who fought for us "over there" by enabling them to take advantage of this opportunity. In some cases four to six weeks leave-of-absence with pay has been granted to ex-soldier employees.

In their brief day they caught the torch, held it high. We, in our small way should help perpetuate the memory of those who passed it on.—Canadian Business.

Many People Quote From Kipling's Works Without Knowing It

Familiar quotations from the works of Rudyard Kipling are legion, often tripping from the tongue without realization, by their users, of their origin. Here are a few of them:

"The Colonel's lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin."
"East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet."
"A rag, a bone and a hank of hair. . ."

"You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din!"
"So I learned about women from her!"

"You're a pore benighted heathen, but a first-class fightin' man."
"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, lest we forget—lest we forget!"
"Without benefit of clergy."

"I've taken my fun where I've found it . . ."
"A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

"The white man's burden."
"It's clever, but is it art?"
"A fool there was."
"Westward the course of Empire goes."

Among Kipling's poems familiar as songs are:

"On the Road to Mandalay,"
"Danny Deever," "Rolling Down to Rio," "Fuzzy-Wuzzy and the Ladies" (I learned about women from 'er). Among the most familiar recitations in the world are Kipling's "Gunga Din" and "If".

An Important Discovery

Doctor Claims Nerves Can Be Spun Like Artificial Silk

Nerves have been taken apart for the first time and spun back together again like artificial silk at the University of Illinois. The spinning method was disclosed as identical with that used in the manufacture of rayon. The experiments were performed in the X-ray laboratories of Dr. George L. Clark, internationally known chemist. Discovery was of primary importance, the chemist asserted, because it increased knowledge of nerve disease.

Beard Great Protection

More Necessary In Morocco Than Night Fires Or Rifles

Flowing beards were more protective than rifles and night fires in Morocco for Kenneth Chapman and A. B. Cozens, who returned to Cambridge, England, after an adventurous trip in the lonely heights of the Middle Atlas Mountains. They gathered 2,000 strange insects, including many hitherto unknown species. Wild animals prowled near their little tent at night; swarms of enormous, biting insects invaded them; hostile tribes hovered menacingly around them 7,000 feet up. But their beards saved them. "With the natives of Morocco it pays to grow a beard, which gives you status," said Chapman. "They have no respect for a beardless man. That was one reason the other was to protect our faces from the giant wingless grasshoppers that were a terrible nuisance. They crawl onto your face and chew it."

Six-Year-Old Montreal Boy Plays Concert Program

Although he could not reach the pedals of his concert grand piano Andre Mathieu, six-year-old prodigy, displayed rare aplomb in his appearance in Montreal as guest soloist with a symphony orchestra of 30 pieces which played his concerto for pianoforte and orchestra.

It was the first of what critics are confident will be a series of triumphs for the youthful French-Canadian from Montreal. Andre is a son of Rodolphe Mathieu, pianist-composer and teacher.

Andre does not like to be called a child prodigy. He has studied piano ever since he was able to sit upright without assistance.

Constant Care Is Needed For Proper Maintenance Of Prairie Shelter Belts

The growing of trees in the drier parts of the prairie presents many difficulties. These, however, can largely be overcome by proper care and cultivation.

As a result of surveys of hundreds of older plantations during the past summer it was found that where trees had been consistently well cultivated the growth has been much better than in the case of neglected shelter belts, the effects of drought not really serious and, what is generally referred to as winter killing was practically nil. The secret of this is the conservation of moisture in the soil.

A mulch of soil reduces evaporation, absorbs more rainfall, and, most important of all, good cultivation keeps out grass and weeds which rob the trees of more moisture than any other controllable factor. Where plantations were neglected weeds and grass have become firmly established and have used up most of the available moisture with the result that the trees have suffered, making little, if any, growth and considerable killing has followed. In some aggravated cases whole rows of many species had succumbed while it was observed that only a short distance away, where the trees were well looked after, the damage was practically negligible.

Drifting soil has partially covered a few of the older plantations and killed out some of the younger ones. In most cases, however, the older plantations are coming away well and are not seriously damaged. The soil should be removed with a scraper wherever possible. The greater part of the soil which might drift in amongst trees could be caught by a strip of stubble left outside of the trees or this land might be seeded to grass or a cover crop. A strip of at least 50 yards wide around the shelter belts should be so treated.

In planning a plantation a strip of ample width should be prepared and the ground well summerfallowed to kill out native grasses and weeds and build up a reserve of moisture for the first year's planting. With the native grasses eradicated and most of the weed seeds killed by the summerfallowing it will be much easier to keep the ground clean after planting. Where fences are erected to protect the belts from stock, which is generally necessary, a space of at least fifteen to eighteen feet wide should be left between the trees and the fence to allow for permanent cultivation. Cultivation should be kept up between the rows as long as possible—three to four years in the case of 4x4' spacing. When it is no longer possible to cultivate between the rows, the trees, provided they are not pruned up, will shade the ground and keep down grass and weeds in the rows. The cultivated strip on both sides of the belt is of the greatest importance. If well worked it keeps grass and weeds from working into the belt and retains more moisture. This storage of moisture will support trees all summer together with what rain falls even through a very dry period. Drifts of snow formed in the belts during the winter are absorbed into the cultivated ground and add to the reservoir of moisture.

Under semi-arid conditions trees cannot be expected to succeed if neglected.

The caragana, ash and elm are the most drought resistant and dependable varieties. Poplar and willows if planted at all should be used very sparingly in the dry areas and then only in the most favourable locations.

By far the most important factor in the successful development of prairie shelter belts, and the one which cannot be too strongly or too frequently stressed, is the maintaining of wide cultivated strips along both edges.

Even if the Earth does last for trillions of years it will come to an end at last.

New Treatment For Diabetes

Research Scientist Makes Report To Medical Society

A new dietetic treatment for diabetes, which has restored some patients to unrestricted diets with no further need for insulin, was described to the St. Louis medical society by a pioneer research scientist.

Dr. Michael Somogyi, director of the bio-chemical laboratory of the Jewish hospital at St. Louis, Mo., reporting a joint study with Dr. Jerome Cook, of the hospital staff, readily assented that the treatment would not apply to all diabetic cases, although he indicated from his own experiences with 274 cases that about 85 per cent might be aided. Dr. Somogyi departed so radically from present dietary regimes that his treatment permits a more liberal use of sugar for diabetic sufferers. The accepted treatment has been the periodic use of insulin together with a carefully administered and restricted carbo-hydrate diet designed to spare the pancreas, the intestinal gland in which the disease has been held to centre.

New Silver Dollar

Will Be Last Coin To Bear Portrait Of King George

A new silver dollar, the last to bear the portrait of King George V., will be in circulation soon. Inquiry at the state department, Ottawa, elicited the information that the necessary proclamation will appear in the near future. The machinery of the royal Canadian mint will then proceed to turn out the new coin.

The new coin will be issued to supply the general demand for silver dollars. As arrangements were made for its issuance some little time ago, and as King George was alive in 1936, the year of its issue, the new dollar will bear his portrait and not that of the present king.

Coins issued after the close of this year, however, must bear the portrait of King Edward VIII.

When coins bearing the portrait of the present king are struck the head will be facing right and not left as is the head of the late king. That is the custom.

Caught By Toothprints

Burglar Left Core Of Apple That Led To His Arrest

An apple has led to the arrest of Josef Kozak, an unemployed workman living near Brezno, Bohemia. A thief broke into a villa at Brezno and stole the silver. In a fruit dish among his haul there was an apple. He ate this and threw the core on the carpet. That was a year ago. The police found the core and have kept it ever since. There has been another burglary of silver in the neighborhood. Kozak, who, it is alleged had been acting suspiciously, was arrested. The manner of the theft reminded the police of the first burglary. They took Kozak's toothprints—and they are alleged to match perfectly those in the carefully preserved apple core.

From Pre-Historic Days

Two Relics Found Which Are Millions Of Years Old

Two relics of pre-historic days have just been brought to light at opposite ends of the earth. Fossilized remains of a marine reptile, about 40 feet long, which once inhabited a sea covering the centre of Australia millions of years ago, have been found in Queensland. It is a monster known as Kronosaurus Queenslandicus, and only four specimens of it have so far been discovered. Meanwhile the petrified trunk of a tree said to have been buried millions of years ago has been found in one of the coal mines in the Don Basin, Soviet Russia. The trunk, weighing two tons, was found at a depth of about 500 feet.

About 15,000 thoroughbred horses are produced each year throughout the world.

Merited The Honor

Rudyard Kipling Earned Right To Rest In Poets' Corner

The honor of burial in Westminster Abbey is rarely offered nowadays, but as the Poet of the British Empire no literary man is more deserving of it than Rudyard Kipling, a greater honor, perhaps, than a title or the Order of Merit.

There have been few burials there in recent years owing to lack of room, and it was understood some time ago that only ashes would be accepted in future for actual interment. Kipling was cremated, but that was not done in order to gain Abbey burial, he having intended that anyway without knowledge that he would be granted a place in the Poets' Corner.

The Poets' Corner is one of the most interesting parts of the Abbey, and is in the south transept where visitors walking around looking at the monuments to the illustrious dead, find themselves right upon it without realizing the fact. Noting that what seems to be the flagstones under their feet have inscriptions carved upon them, they receive something of a shock when they examine the surface and find they are standing upon the grave of Chaucer or Dickens, Handel or Sir Henry Irving.

The reason for the overcrowded condition of the Poets' Corner is that in early times the honor was too freely conferred, and many men who may have been distinguished in their day, when it was easier to be famous than now, were buried there. Actors and musicians were also interred, and in addition to those named it includes Sheridan, Dr. Samuel Johnson, Lord Macaulay, David Garrick, and lesser people such as Sir William Davenport and Tom May, who were writers, and John Henderson, who was an actor. No such distinction would have been conferred upon them to-day.

There are other inconsequential people buried elsewhere in the Abbey, among them being Old Parr, who had no other claim to distinction than that he lived to be 152 years of age.

The Poets' Corner, however, is unique in the national shrine, and Rudyard Kipling merits the honor. —St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Scientists To Test Theory That This Continent Is Slowly Drifting Westward

Are the Americas drifting westward? Did all the continents originally form a single immense land mass, which eventually broke up, Europe, Asia and Africa retaining pretty well their original status, while North and South America moved to the westward and Australia to the south? If so, is the drift still going on, and can it be measured? These are some of the questions that have been exercising the scientific mind in recent years, and which science, after its accustomed fashion, is taking steps to answer, slowly but surely.

This theory has come to be associated with the name of Wegener, the well-known geologist who advocated it as a substitute for the previously postulated "land-bridge" connecting America and Europe, to account for the similarities in existing fossil flora and fauna on the two sides of the Atlantic. Credibility was enhanced by the remarkable similarities between the eastern shore lines of the Americas and the western coasts of Europe and Africa, which, especially if consideration is restricted to the deep-water lines, would, it has been claimed, fit into each other like the parts of a jigsaw puzzle.

One way of assisting in a test of the theory is by settling definitely whether such a drift exists at the present time, and this the astronomers and geodesists have set themselves to do. A definite answer will necessarily be long in coming. According to the exponents of the theory, this drift at the present time might amount to two or three feet per year; admittedly, however, the amount is largely guesswork. Accepting this figure, it might amount in half a century to 100 or 150 feet, which is not much in 3,000 miles; such a quantity could, however, be definitely measured.

After several years of preparation, the International Astronomical Union and the International Geodetic and Geophysical Union united in 1926 in sponsoring a world-wide campaign for measuring the differences in longitude between all the important observatories of the world, as well as many subsidiary stations. Canada participated through the Dominion Observatory, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, which occupied stations at Ottawa and Vancouver. In the United States the principal stations were at Washington and San Diego, California, while Greenwich, Paris, Algiers, Tokyo and many other important observatories also took a leading part. On that occasion attention was particularly focussed on two main chains of stations, Algiers, Washington, San Diego, and Shanghai in middle latitudes, and Greenwich, Ottawa, Vancouver, and Tokyo farther to the north. Thirty or forty other observatories also took part. With such a network once completed, the question of drift could be settled by repeating the measures after a sufficient interval.

In 1933 a similar program was repeated, more with the intention of strengthening the former network than with any hope of definitely settling the question after such a short lapse of time. If on the other hand a large drift existed it might be expected to betray itself. On this occasion the same two main chains of stations were occupied, with the addition of a third in the southern hemisphere. Between 75 and 100 observatories participated.

The amount of observation and computation involved in such a task is enormous. Astronomical observations for local time were made at each observatory on every clear night for between two and three months, and all the observatories were interconnected by special wireless signals sent out several times a day from all the powerful wireless stations in the world. Each observatory completed a preliminary computation of its own results, and the whole mass of data was handed over to the International Time Bureau, with headquarters at Paris, for digestion and correlation, a process which is still going on.

Though final results are not available, it is now known from the preliminary results that a comparison of the observations of 1926 and 1933, as was indeed expected, will not show definite evidence of any movement. This does not necessarily mean that a drift does not exist, but only that it is not large enough to definitely show itself in the seven intervening years. The unavoidable errors entering into even the best observations would be just about sufficient to mask a displacement of the two or three feet a year that has been suggested. At all events, if the drift exists at all it is not much greater than this amount. For a perfectly definite answer to the question we shall have to wait for perhaps a generation. Science is sometimes slow, but sure in the end.

Rickshaw Men Licensed

About 37,000 Have Right To Ply Trade In Shanghai

Licensing of pullers of public rickshaws in the International Settlement of Shanghai, China, has just been completed with 37,000 men possessing the right to ply their peripatetic trade. More than 800 candidates had been rejected because of age or unfitness. The licensing began in the autumn of 1934. It has been expected that more than the maximum of 40,000 pullers would try to be licensed during the period set aside for the procedure. Originally the plan was for the rickshaw owners to nominate 30,000 pullers and the City Council 10,000, but subsequently the council granted the owners the right to nominate 40,000.

Making War On Emu

Farmers In Western Australia Fear Ruination Of Crops

Wheat farmers have asked the government to send troops or machine guns to Western Australia—to fight the emu. At a special meeting of the Bonny Rock branch of the Wheatgrowers' Union it was stated that the position was now, owing to the ravages of the emu, much more serious than three years ago, when hundreds of acres of crops were ruined. Nearly 1,000 emus have been reported, and the farmers are determined to exterminate them before their crops are ruined. There are several former machine-gunners among the farmers in the district, it is pointed out. All that is needed is a few guns and some ammunition.

Correspondence.

Editor, Didsbury Pioneer.

Dear Sir:

The prices quoted for eggs at Didsbury and Calgary respectively
by the Pioneer and the Calgary
Albertan for Thursday, Feb. 20th
are as follow:

Didsbury	Calgary, top producer
	F O B Calgary
A Large 18c	A Large 30 to 35c
A Medium 16c	A Medium 29 to 32c
Grade B 14c	Grade B 22 to 26c
Grade C 12c	Grade C 20 to 21c
Wholesale price to Calgary retailer—
A Large 42 to 45c
A Medium 40 to 41c

As you will see, there is a difference of 12 to 17c per dozen between the wholesale price F.O.B. Calgary, and Didsbury, and a difference of 10 to 12 cents between wholesaler and retailer, which averages around 12c per dozen for the two handling, granting the same profit to the retailer of 12c, makes a total distribution charge of around 36c, or double what the producer gets, and a total cost to the consumer of 55c. As you will note, the producer only gets about 30c of the consumer's egg dollar, which naturally affects the producer's purchasing power,
and consequently the local merchant, for as far as they are concerned the other 70c might as well be dumped in the middle of the ocean.

Before the grading system was installed we used to get a fair price for our eggs, and the consumer got his eggs cheaper. I am not complaining about the idea of grading, but it does seem that the cost of distribution is out of all reason.
Why should each distributor have to have around 12c for handling?
Who sets the margin of profit, anyway? I suppose that margin of profit is maintained no matter what the price of eggs is to the producer.

It seems to me the only remedy for this state of affairs is Mr. Aber-hart's scheme of the Just Price. If he can put that over successfully he can forget about the basic dividend—for we won't need it, anyway.

Yours truly,

J. L. CHANDLER

It will be noted that egg prices at Didsbury are 30c per dozen this week. The prices were raised after last week's paper was published—Ed

Dear Sir:

Did you ever stop to think of having an Arena in Didsbury? If not, think and talk it over with your neighbors in these long winter evenings and then appoint a committee to look into this matter. It could be done with a little co operation of our town and country friends.

Make this your slogan, "Keep our people at home and boost for Dids-

Your life is in your own hands.
You set the limits to yourself and

Philosophy of Curling.

Inside the club rooms at the rink
Are benches in a row,
Where fellows sit to watch the games
While wreaths of smoke they blow.
And if you really want to learn
The fine points of the play,
Don't shoot your rocks—just stay inside
And listen to what they say.

So light your pipe and take your seat
Where it is warm and nice;
Where better games are always curled
Than out upon the ice.
For soon you'll hear, "He's narrow,
sure
He's coming far too hard.
No, no, don't sweep, just let it go,
He's going to get the guard."

"Say, watch that guy, the twist he makes
In his deliverance
He'll tie himself into a knot
If he should draw the tee."
He's wide, he's slow, oh let it go,
He never gets the broom
There's no excuse to miss that shot,
He sure had lots of room."

Now what's he laying that shot for,
What can he be about?
He ought to have a running shot
And get that rock right out
He'll never get it with that ice
Well, look at what he struck!
He got it after all, but then—
He had a lot of luck."

But when these men are called to play—
These curlers skilled and wise—
They make the very same mistakes
As those they criticize
They find it takes but little skill
To dissipate advice,
And play a scientific game—
When they are off the ice.

So as we pass along life's way,
And as we hear men talk,
We're always skillful when we throw
The other fellow's rock.
This disposition is not strange,
In life it's just the same—
We're always wisest when we skip
The other fellow's game

Weekly News Letter

By T. B. WINDROSS

EDMONTON — (Press Gallery)—Much to the relief of everybody the debate, if it may be called a debate, on the reply to the speech from the throne ended Wednesday. It was a very one-sided discussion, as only two members of the opposition took any part. These two were W. R. Howson, K.C., and John Irwin, member for Calgary and Conservative.

Mr. Irwin rose to his feet to let the house know that even if its representation in the legislature is very small, "the Conservative party is not dead and buried."

The debate lasted for nine days and thirty members took part in it. It was nine days of lectures on the principles and benefits of Social Credit. Only backbenchers on the government side spoke, but without exception they were all practiced and fluent platform speakers. The opposition listened to them in courteous silence. Last year the throne speech debate lasted thirteen days and thirty speakers took part, the same number that spoke this year.

This week promises to be very interesting in the legislature, and if any persons from outside towns are planning to come up to the capital to hear some of the seasonal discussions, this week should be a good time to come.

It has been indicated that Premier Aberhart's new education bill may be introduced, and the Social Credit recall bill will be brought down. Advance information obtained in government circles predicts that this bill will be an instrument that will not have any destructive elements in it. The possibility of a recall being successful will be limited to some extent by making the percentage of electors demanding it before proceedings can be taken sufficiently large to prevent the legislature being made unstable. There will be no opening for recall proceedings on frivolous or minor reasons.

There is also a possibility that the bill for enabling the government to establish social credit may be brought down late in the week, as it is said in official circles to be ready for introduction. These three bills are the most important and possibly the most contentious ones to come before this session of the legislature. There is much curiosity regarding the details of the social credit measure, but these are being kept a close secret by the government until the day when they will be revealed in the house.

The legislature adjourned Thursday for the funeral of the late Mr. Justice Boyle, which was held from the First Presbyterian Church and attended by Premier Aberhart, members of his cabinet and a large number of the members. A resolution of sympathy with the late judge's family was passed by the house, leaders in all parties paying tribute to the late judge.

Introduced by Hon. W. N. Chant, minister of agriculture, a bill was passed Friday authorizing expenditures on relief for farmers who have suffered for want of feed during the recent severe weather. And another act authorizing the guaranteeing of loans for relief made to farmers by the Dominion Financial Loan Company, was passed. There was some discussion over amendments to the Drilling For Water Act, and the solemnization of Marriages Act, but throughout it the members were all in good humor.

The order paper for this week will contain some lively things on several days. Opposition members have asked for returns that have opened up fields for discussion. Some financial returns tabled show that the tentative budget provided for the government about two months ago contained proposals for boosting the income tax heavily. Mr. Howson is going to ask that both Major Douglas and R. J. Magor appear before the legislature at the same time. He will include in his motion that should it be found impossible for both these experts to be present now, the session should adjourn to a later date and meet to hear them then.

There is not much probability the government will agree to Mr. How-son's proposal, but if they did, the sitting at which these advisors to the government meet should be a very interesting one. Mr. Howson points out that Douglas and Magor are advising the cabinet from opposite positions and that they appear to be at cross purposes.

The interim report of the provincial auditor, tabled in the house reveals some startling facts. A deficit for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1936, on ordinary account is estimated. When the estimates were passed at the 1935 session of the legislature the deficit was estimated at $699,479.

Highlights of the financial reports presented are as follows: In addition to the above estimated deficit, revenue increase of $842,000 in the nine months' period ended Dec. 31, 1935; funded and unfunded debt of $156,241,997 at the end of December, the net increase being $2,318,970; cash deficit of $717,172 for nine months' period, and increase of $55,097 over a similar period in 1934.

The tentative budget suggested by the provincial auditor provides for a deficit of $4671,268 and refunding of provincial debt on a 2.75 interest basis with a view to balancing the budget. It also suggests an increase of the income tax of 60 per cent, to yield an additional revenue of $350,000.

RUGBY NOTES

The much-postponed meeting of the W. I. was held February 20th, when 15 members and visitors, tired of waiting for that long delayed chinook, which has certainly lost its way, were entertained at the hospitable home of Mrs. Cowitz. After the business of the day was concluded, the topic of the afternoon "Legislation," was taken up under the convener'ship of Mrs. Hogg, and a most interesting discussion followed on various knotty problems. Mrs. H. Hoggood gave a short talk on the League of Nations' work. A whist drive has been arranged for Wednesday evening, February 26th at the home of Mrs. Evans, weather permitting. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wahl, with "Agriculture" the subject of the afternoon's program.

Mountain View Notes

The Hill family had the misfortune to lose part of their home by fire on Tuesday.

Owing to the continued zero weather several farmers have had the misfortune to lose several litters of pigs. One farmer reported the loss of thirty five.

The monthly meeting of the W.I. which was postponed last week will be held at the home of Mrs. E. St. Clair on Thursday, Feb. 27.

Chinese Woman Claims To Be 110 Years Old

The Lester Chinese hospital harbors the most unusual patient ever treated in Shanghai in the person of a Chinese woman, 110 years old. This woman, Chang Sze, lived her whole life in the village of Klingningchow, in the southwestern Shantung province, until the flood caused by the Yellow river made her a refugee.

Accompanied by her 38-year-old great-great-grandson, Mrs. Chang made her way to the railway and for the first time in her life boarded a train. At Pukow her baggage roll containing her bedding, her one extra gown and the savings of a life time, $23, was stolen.

En route to Shanghai she and her great-great-grandson lost the address of their only living relative, who was a policeman there four years ago but has now disappeared.

Mrs. Chang, a widow for 90 years, has lived through the reigns of five emperors.

Soviet Airman In Luck

Orders To Make Parachute Jump Turned Out All Right

A parachute wedding has been celebrated in a village 80 miles from Moscow. The bridegroom, Michael Ivanovich, a Soviet airman, had arranged to be married when all leave was cancelled for parachute manoeuvres. They began on what was to have been Ivanovich's wedding day. As he took off, he was handed field orders, giving the place for his parachute jump. The seal was not to be broken until he was in the air. Up went the machine—and Ivanovich tore open the official envelope. He could hardly believe his eyes—the place given for his descent was the village where he was to have been married. No parachutist could have been more eager to obey his orders than Ivanovich. He landed safely from the skies at the feet of his bride—who had run from her house to watch the air manoeuvres. Before evening they were married.

Locate Buried Church

Diggers Found Bell Which Will Be Used Again

Lost for 49 years until found recently by diviners, a bell buried when Wairoa, New Zealand, was blotted out by the eruption of Mount Tarawera, has been dug up and will be hung in another Maori church. Two men, using rods from a tree, walked over the ground where the church was buried in 1886 until they found the spot where the twigs indicated that bulky metal object was beneath the ground. Diggers found the bell buried deep.

Robot Traffic Signal

Counts Cars And Gives Longest Line Right Of Way

Motor traffic in busy parts of Britain is to be controlled by the photo-electric "eye". One device is being installed at crossings where traffic often holds up pedestrians for long periods. When the ray is broken by a pedestrian it gives a signal for motorists to stop. The second innovation is a robot traffic signal which does not depend upon automatic timing, but counts the number of cars both in side and main streets before releasing the springs which turn the red light to green. Thus, if in a side street there is a sudden flow of traffic, instead of a long line of cars being held up at the red light while only a few cars are passing in the main thoroughfare, the side street traffic takes precedence.

Automatic Change In Date

Not Necessary To Change Statute Regarding King's Birthday

June 3, the birthday of the late King, will cease to be a public holiday in Canada, and June 23, the birthday of King Edward VIII., will be observed instead. The statute says that: "The birthday or the day fixed by proclamation for the celebration of the birthday of the reigning Sovereign" shall be included among the national holidays of the Dominion. Thus unless, the Government proclaims some other day, June 23 will be celebrated as a holiday throughout Canada during the reign of the new King.

Benefits Sick Children

The Duke of Kent has directed that the sum of $30,000 raised for the national wedding gift fund organized by the "Georges" in commemoration of his wedding shall be handed to the Invalid Children's Aid Association to provide holidays for convalescing sick children of the unemployed.

Don't Guess But Know

Whether the "Pain" Remedy You Use is SAFE?

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are taking for the relief of headaches is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" most "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this.

FLEMING'S FOLLY
— BY —
LAWRENCE A. KEATING

SYNOPSIS

The story opens with Link Fleming addressing a meeting of Boone County cattlemen, called together with the object of forming an irrigation company.

Roper Kilgo, the boss of the Rawhide and nearby ranges, who seemed to approve the plan, but was really opposed to it, had forced Soak Torney, a derelict mining engineer, whom Kilgo knew would be called upon to give his expert opinion in favor of the scheme, to reverse his earlier endorsement, and declare that irrigation in Boone county so far as Hamilton's plan was concerned, was only a new-fangled way to waste money.

The meeting terminates, but Buzz Hamilton and his sister, Helen, Link and Kilgo stay behind and Helen asks Fleming questions about his irrigation plan. This angers Buzz, who accuses Fleming of trying to influence his sister and, as he asserts, ruin his "spread". Buzz shoots at Fleming in an uncontrollable fit of anger, but Buster Townsend, Link's foreman, is shot in the stomach, and Fleming is uninjured. Buzz is arrested. The doctor attends Townsend and dresses his wound. Kilgo Roper suggests taking Helen to her home, but she refuses and Fleming escorts her home instead. This incident causes Roper to declare open hostility to Fleming.

Helen and Fleming form a partnership to provide irrigation for their own properties. Link goes home, and is surprised to find Kilgo there ahead of him. Kilgo tries to induce Link to drop his scheme, and when Fleming refuses, gives a signal by taking off his hat, and Link is shot at from outside the house.

Link kicks Kilgo out of the house. Buzz Hamilton is sentenced to three years' imprisonment for shooting Bud Townsend.

Buzz was over, Link meets Soak Torney, who starts telling Fleming why he withdrew his approval of the water scheme. Just as he was about to tell the name of the man who had forced him to do so, Torney is shot and killed by a rifle bullet. Link hunts around to find the killer, but finds nothing. He comes across Jackpot Mell watering his horse, and Jackpot warns Fleming that if he wished to live he had better leave the district.

(Now Go On With The Story)

He gave up the search. "I'm obliged about the land. It's going to be worth a good deal more than you and Kilgo thought. Jackpot," he went on slowly, his brown eyes travelling over the man's light figure, "you could have killed Torney, and you wouldn't have turned a hair doing it. I have a hunch somebody made him talk like he did at the meeting. In fact, Soak told me so. Well," he ended, turning away, "I've got to mosey."

"Hold on." Mell's sallow countenance wore its accustomed look of masked derision but there was a brittle edge to his tone. "Link, you ought to quit these parts. Runnin' a place in town like mine, a man overhears things."

"I see. Just a friendly tip, eh?"

"Shore! We always got on good enough, but I'm not the kind to keep mum to my friends. Seems like I can't remember who I heard talkin'." He frowned, then winked. "I've been lots of different places in my time. Found out it's mighty good sense to git elsewhere before trouble busts out."

"I never did own any baggage, Jackpot," was the drawled reply. "By the way, when you get to town tell the sheriff there's a corpse here for him to see."

Mell shrugged, then strode to his horse and mounted. He did not so much as glance back, but urged his roan along the spring bed in the direction of the road. Link followed afoot, watching until the man disappeared toward Rawhide.

He searched another half hour for tracks or some clue to the identity of Soak's killer. There was none. Hearing hoof-beats, he stepped out of the trees onto the road. To his surprise it was Honest John Mulrooney he saw, and Marty Bush, instead of the sheriff.

They pulled up. "Who's lyin' there?"

"Soak Torney. He and I were talking and somebody shot him. I haven't found out yet who did it."

Bush dismounted. "Do you know why?"

He nodded. "Torney hasn't been seen since the meeting, you know. He stepped out of the trees and stopped me. Started to say who scared him into going against the irrigation scheme at the last minute. Soak was all for it before, but somebody scared him into talkin' like he did. It looks kind of queer."

He broke off as Sheriff Stephen and the shorter, pudgier figure of Coroner Ed. Sproggins rounded the bend, seated in a buckboard. They drew up and climbed out. Ames went at once to the man who lay on his side in the road. He pursed his lips, stood up eyeing Fleming, then walked slowly toward him.

"I'm s'prised yo're hangin' around. Link. After killin' a man most guys light out."

Astonishment swept over the Star Loop's owner's face. He stared blankly at Stephen, then looked with puzzled uncertainty at Bush and Mulrooney. "You mean," he demanded at last, incredulously, "you think I killed Soak?"

The other grinned. "We got word you did. Where's the rifle? Had plenty of time to get rid of it, of course."

Sproggins nodded to this. The cattle agent and Mulrooney looked startled as they drew nearer. "Sheriff, if Mell told you I killed Torney, he lies!"

Stephen jerked at his straggly grey mustache. "Oh, Jackpot's a smooth liar, all right. But I reckoned you'd say that. Self-defense, wasn't it?"

"I didn't shoot him at all. Soak stepped out of the trees as I rode along. He started to tell me who made him back down on the irrigation scheme at the meeting the other day. Before he got it out he was shot. I went after the fellow, but found Mell watering his horse at the spring. He claimed he didn't do it—and I couldn't find a rifle on him or anywhere around."

"Do you think I'd hang around here, waiting for you if I killed Soak? If it was self-defense, I'd ride for you myself. If it was murder, I'd be miles away by now."

Silence fell. "That's yore story, eh?" Ames reached out his hip pocket and drew out a pair of manacles. "First I'll take that sixgun, Fleming. Yore yarn sounds weak to me. Had plenty cause to want Soak dead, didn't yuh? So yuh could maybe talk ranchers into the waterin' scheme? So long as he was around, the main authority on it, yuh couldn't make much headway. I'll have to take yuh in, Link."

Impulse assailed him to whip out his weapon and hold the sheriff at bay until he could make a swift escape. But he stifled this. It would brand him with the appearance of guilt. He was wholly innocent: the proper thing to do was to insist on that.

Stephen was stretching out his hands with the manacles when John Mulrooney uttered a dry chuckle and stepped close. "Who says Link killed Torney, Sheriff?"

"Jackpot Mell. Claims he hadda git for dear life or he'd have got it too. Says he met Soak, who told him Link kept him prisoner, but he got away. Jackpot didn't know till Link shot that he followed 'em here."

The cattleman grinned and shook his head. "Ever hear of Mell runnin' from a gunfight?"

"H'm. No, never did."

"Guess Jackpot keeps too late hours," Mulrooney drawled. "Works on a man's brain like the tremens. Why, this killin' couldn't have happened that way, Ames—not without Marty and me knowin'. We been with Link the last hour."

The lawman stiffened, uttering an exclamation. Even the unmotional Sproggins blinked and slowly shifted his gaze to Bush.

"Been with him an hour!"

"Have we, Marty, or not?"

The cattle agent struck a match on his boot sole. "Of course."

Fortunately Stephens was not looking at Link at the moment, so that he had time to master the amazement that rippled over his tanned face. When Ames scowled back his expression was calm, uninformative.

"Huh! You claim that too?"

"Might as well, Sheriff. It gets me out of a jam, doesn't it?"

A piercing look was the answer. "Come on, Ames, forget this. It was just a little joke on Mell's part. I reckon," Marty urged. "Why, Fleming isn't a killer! And like he said, it's unreasonable to suppose that if he did shoot Torney, he would wait around an hour for you to come."

Stephen removed his hat and scratched his head. "All right," he decided with irritated reluctance. "You can go, Link. But dang it, I'm goin' to look into this plumb thorough! Willin' to swear you didn't have a rifle along to-day?"

"I am."

"And you don't know how Torney got killed?"

"Haven't any idea as to the killer—no."

"H'm. I ain't satisfied, by a dumb sight. Might hear from me later."

Relieved, but trying to keep betrayal of that fact from his face, Fleming sought his horse. A moment later he rode off with Bush and Mulrooney. When they were out of ear-shot he faced them.

"Well, what made you do it? Do you know who shot Soak from ambush?"

"Course not! But look here, Link: who did?"

"Haven't any idea, Marty. Don't even know why Jackpot should want suspicion on me. Why should he try to put me away like Buzz, and maybe for a longer time?"

Honest John looked troubled. "Yo're too believin' in folks. Why, any dog with a sore foot can tell when it's hard walkin'. Guess you can't, though. Uh—Marty and I figured yuh ain't a killer, so we lied to Ames. Ain't sorry, neither. But . . ." He hesitated.

"Speak up, John. Both of you have something on your minds. I can see that plain enough."

They exchanged looks. "Yeah. You know that promise I made in meetin', to go along with yuh on this irrigation?"

"Sure. Bush spoke up too. I'm mighty glad you aren't scared of the plan, like all the rest of these old-fashioned cow prodders. Why, there never would be progress if everyone—"

"Wait, will yuh?" Mulrooney shifted uncomfortably in his saddle and stared into the distance. "That's what I'm getting at. Yuh see, my old woman's been sick a long time. And I had trouble with my steers when that spring went dry, and what with one thing and another, I'm hard up. Mind if I pull out o' yore scheme?"

"Me too—if you don't mind, Link," Bush put in.

Silence. "I understand, boys," he said quietly. "You backed me in the meeting just for effect. For effect. For friendship's sake. Like you lied to Sheriff Stephen, because you didn't want to see me in trouble. That it?"

"Well . . ."

"You feel like the others, that irrigation is some crazy modern scheme for wasting money. I'm grateful for your backing," he said sincerely as he strove to conceal his disappointment. "I surely am. You did me a good turn both times."

"Aw, Link, you oughtn't go into this water scheme. Why, everybody thinks you're plumb loco!"

They neared the fork in the road where Bush and Mulrooney would turn off. The sullen sky was going a deeper grey, yielding slowly to night. The wind had sharpened to a brittle keenness and snow continued to fall in a steady, melancholy swirl. The Star Loop owner stopped his horse.

"I believe in it, boys."

Bush expelled tobacco juice. "Buzz doesn't, though. If Helen goes in with yuh like I hear yo're persuadin' her to, folks'll say you had Buzz put away so she could manage their spread."

Link looked sharply at the cattle agent. "Folks would gossip about sunshine if there was nothing better. That wouldn't concern me. We aim to go through with this thing. I'm set on it, sure it will work."

They shook their heads. "There'll be opposition, Link. Like this Soak Torney affair. And that shootin' the other night. Was Kilgo out on a friendly call, or what?"

Fleming smiled. "Not exactly. Do you suspect anyone?"

Little Helps For This Week

If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. Mark 9:23.

So nigh is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When duty whispers low, Thou must,
The youth replies, I can.
—R. W. Emerson.

Know that "impossible" where truth and mercy, and the everlasting voice of nature order, has no place in the brave man's dictionary. That when all men have said it is impossible and have gone elsewhere and you are left alone, then your time and opportunity have come. It is for you to do now, ask no counsel from anyone but God, and it will be possible for you to write on the eternal skies the record of a heroic life.

In the moral world there is nothing impossible if we bring a thorough will to it. Man can do everything with himself; but he must not attempt too much with others.

Children's Colds Should Have This Safe Treatment

Young Mothers Benefit from Two Generations' Proof of This External Treatment For Fighting Colds.

IT AVOIDS CONSTANT "DOSING"

There's nothing like a child's cold to upset a young mother. And mothers of two generations, anxious to help end colds, have depended on Vicks VapoRub. It is effective—external—and safe. It avoids the risks of constant "dosing," so often upsetting to children's delicate digestions. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once:

1. By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster—
2. By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, released by body heat and breathed in direct to inflamed air-passages.

Continuing through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm—soothes irritated membranes—eases difficult breathing—helps break congestion.

A Practical Guide for Mothers
Each year, more and more families are being helped to fewer colds and shorter colds by Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. Vicks Plan has been clinically tested by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use by millions. Full details of the Plan in each package of Vicks VapoRub.
